Profile

Adam accepts instructions in all areas of Chambers' work and can act on a Public Access basis. He regularly appears in Employment Tribunal and professional discipline hearings of up to two weeks in length, personal injury trials, and interlocutory hearings of all types. He advises in writing and in conference and undertakes all relevant drafting in his areas of practice. For further information on specific areas of work undertaken, please see the sections below.

Before joining chambers, Adam worked full-time at the Free Representation Unit. He advised on and appeared in a wide range of employment claims, gaining experience of multi-day liability hearings and remedy hearings. He also appeared on behalf of appellants and respondents in the Employment Appeal Tribunal and in the First-Tier Tribunal in Criminal Injuries Compensation appeals.

Before coming to the Bar, Adam read Politics, Philosophy and Economics at New College, Oxford and worked as an analyst at a global management consulting firm. He holds a Hardwicke Entrance Award, Lord Denning Scholarship, Buchanan Prize and Hubert Greenland Scholarship from Lincoln's Inn.

In his spare time, Adam enjoys cooking and playing squash. He is also a keen climber and skier.
