Profile

Bruno accepts instructions in all areas of Chambers' work, offering the full range of advocacy, advisory and drafting services. Bruno has a particular focus on employment, professional regulation, personal injury and clinical negligence.

He regularly appears in the Employment Tribunal for trials and interlocutory hearings, as well as the County Court for fast track trials, CCMCs and small claims hearings. He has also appeared in the Magistrates Court, Crown Court and the First-Tier Tribunal of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority.

His pro bono work has included volunteering for the Bar Pro Bono Unit, for whom he has carried out advisory work in medical regulation matters. He has additionally volunteered with the Employment Litigants in Person Service, the Free Representation Unit, the Employment Law Telephone Advice Line and Islington Law Centre.

Having previously worked for 14 months as a paralegal for a claimant clinical negligence firm, and having now been on secondment as in-house counsel within a large respondent employment firm, Bruno is particularly aware of the demands placed upon his professional client.

Before coming to the Bar, Bruno read for a BSc and MSc in Biological Sciences. He subsequently worked for several years in management and operations for a global high-end restaurant group, allowing him to hone excellent client care skills.

During his professional training (BPTC), Bruno won three national advocacy competitions, including the BPP National BPTC Mooting Competition, judged by Lord Neuberger in the Supreme Court. He attained a further prize in an international mediation tournament held in Chicago in 2013. Bruno was awarded the Lord Denning Scholarship and Lord Brougham Scholarship from Lincoln's Inn.

Testimonial

'Well prepared and eloquent, Bruno is an exceptional all round advocate who possesses the intelligence and flexibility to adapt a case to changing circumstances in court. In addition to his outstanding presentational skills, Bruno upholds an admirable level of client care and is adept at guiding individual claimants through the difficult and stressful tribunal process. Highly recommended.'
